What Does Moneyline Mean?

A moneyline bet is also written as "moneyline" or "ML" and is placed on an outcome of one event.

Without a point spread in moneyline betting, the margin of victory is irrelevant.

In point-spread betting, the Dallas Cowboys, for example, might defeat the Philadelphia Eagles by four points but because the Cowboys were 6-point favorites, the Cowboys' spread would've lost.

There are three parts in moneyline betting:

In the case of the Lakers-Celtics game, the Lakers are the moneyline favorite at -180, while the Celtics are the underdog at +130.

If the New York Yankees are a -150 moneyline favorite, you must wager $150 to profit $100 (total payout, including stake, would be $250).

You can see the potential payouts before placing a bet by adding moneyline wagers to your Bet Slip.
